

In the News

You've seen the headlines.

You've heard the news.

Benefit scroungers

Should pay their dues.

Disabled people aren't worth the cost.

All money to them is money lost.

They're lazy liars, or useless freaks

Slap DNR signs on all the weak

But those aren't the words

that's not the song

We won't join in

We will not simply sing along

I may be broken but unbowed

I am in pain but still I'm proud

If I can't work I still have worth

We all are people on this earth

You might not see us, we see you

And we see all the things you do

Believing you will never be

Someone with pain and needs like me.

You've seen the headlines.

You've heard the news.

Benefit scroungers

Should pay their dues.

One moment's luck and this is you.

Might loathe the thought, but still it's true.

Illness does not discriminate

It might be you that someone hates.

So those aren't the words

Let's change the song

Just don't join in

And do not simply sing along

I may be broken but unbowed

I am in pain but still I'm proud

If I can't work I still have worth

We all are people on this earth

I may be broken but unbowed

I am in pain but still I'm proud

If I can't work I still have worth

We all are people on this earth

We are all people on this earth

Let's change the world.
