

Poem by Mette Pedersen

In this prison of a body
I can get no rest
Sounds and light drain my energy
I can only live less

In this unrelenting cage
Shrinking as I fight
I hear the voices outside
And try to mimic life in my mind

In this unforgiving nightmare
I can only wither away
While you others live a lifetime
In this bed I will stay